

The Lickie Lickie Downunders!

The team Lickie Lickie Downunders originated from a couple of mates looking to involve cricket as a get together. It's our first year testing the 7's cricket out and are hoping to make it an annual trip. With a few blokes with cricket ability and a few that don't even play cricket, it should be full of entertainment! Having this side sober for the first ball of the game will be our biggest battle. There a bunch of chronic gambling, beer guzzling, alcoholics!

Trent Cameron

The captain face the task of not only rallying himself to the games he faces a near impossibly task of round up his team of drunks to make it on time. That being said he will be sure to use his local knowledge to his advantage, as he was conceived only two blocks from the cricket ground at the family home.

Aaron Jones

If we can drag this bloke out of the hotel buffet he could be this side's X Factor. Only thing that will hold him back from a big tournament is chafe

Scott Bird

The Big Bird has cricket royalty running through his blood. He is the first cousin of Bermuda cricketing legend Dwayne Leverock. High possibility being Aaron Jones tag team partner for the buffet. P.s Also nothing to do with cricket but has two very hot sisters!!!

Nick Say

Gets a lot of zip on the ball from a man the same height as a Smurf. Loves to throw his little piece of willow at everything and anything. Is paying 1 to 1 odds of taking home STD's.

Nick Price

Has only ever played one game of cricket, which was 6's. But don't let a bucket of juicy kernel chicken get between this man and the wickets, because he will chew them up and spit them out.

Nathan Kent

The newly wed veteran of the side has vowed to share his vast experience with the youngsters in the squad to improve their games. The 59-year-old has vowed never to stop playing cricket while he has hair on his head. Judging from his photo he will be retiring next week. Nathan plans to return to Thailand after the 7's for his honeymoon with his new wife Trudy.

Ben Lonergan

Outspoken all-rounder who likes to get things his own way out in the middle - or anywhere for that matter. He is looking to enjoy individual success during the tournament as he has announced his plans for early retirement from the game to patch things up with childhood sweetheart Amanda and start a family. If form escapes him though, a phone call to Mum and an early exit from the tournament wouldn't surprise.

Jake Turner

The Sydney first grade left arm quick who sold his stolen car, most of his clothes and took his mums Thursday pay to finance this trip. Says he is looking forward to meeting new people throughout the tournament to talk about himself and educate people of his proud culture and maybe share a Metho and orange juice, hold the juice.

